A tale of daring that is rarely equaled is told of an exploit of Sergeant G. Norini, of the Bersaglieri. While on patrol he stopped a German motor car carrying General von Berrer, an adjutant and two chauffeurs. He killed the General with the first shot and put the soldier chauffeurs to flight. The adjutant, a German captain, he captured after a struggle and turned him over to the nearest Italian command, and then joined his patrol for further rearguard action. He was wounded later and sent to a hospital in Milan. His most extraordinary and daring feat took place at the gates of Udine between 5 and 6 A. M., during the Italian retreat to the Piave.
